concept revolves around encouraging the teachers and sixth formers to eat in the dining hall; not only to integrate, but to monitor it too. This is being achieved by creating a raised area with a 1.2 metre high partition, thereby providing some privacy without being completely blocked off from the main hall. In addition, an independent café is being incorporated, with soft seating enabling it to be used outside of school hours for meetings and get togethers.

Smith & Brown Interior Design is renowned for its innovative approach to projects, and has recently completed Entrading, a retail shop and café that sells environmental and sustainable products. Working with other leading contractors such as Taranis Flooring & Design, MG Electrica and Omega, the firm has managed to reflect the client's ethos by creating an environment design that is bright, fun and contemporary - away from the 'tree hugger' image that environmental shops used to have. The company has also just won the tender to refurbish the Buchanan Arms Hotel at Drymen, close to Loch Lomond, with phase one incorporating the conference and banqueting room, public bar, lounge and conservatory.

Of course, good news travels fast, and Smith & Brown Interior Design's expertise is now being sought far and wide, including a prestigious project in Dubai: with the Rupee Room, at the Burj Mall, and the Noodle Room, at Dubai Marina, both currently enjoying a little bit of Scottish flair!

So wherever you are and whatever your current challenge, you can do no better than call Smith & Brown Interior Design on 0845 900 0510.
